As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantit and changed in quality; they are now thick and heav and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are o ensive, causing a bad breath; the voice is thick and na sal; the eyes are weak; the sense of the smell is lesser or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place. Anothe common and important symptom of Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy mucus, which has fallen down from the head during the night.
